

Ask me anything

1 questions
0 upvotes

Which technique is best to: compute and return an image, then store the image in a backup database

Which technique is best for: a search engine that connects client to one of many available servers

Which technique is best to: run several (expensive) computations and combine the result (eg find the max)

Which technique is best for: a database update followed by propagation of update to mirror database

Which technique is best for: a translation server that translates text to another language

Last chance for questions